Decision Follows Deadlock With Dean Andy Cogswell

By TED HULBERT

Clint Grimes, 24-year-old veteran, is resigning as chairman of Judicial Council. Subsequent resignations are expected from other members of the student group which hears liquor violation cases.

Grimes told the Kaimin last night he will submit his resignation to ASMSU President Larry Pettit today. He said other members of the Council also plan to resign.

Grimes' decision came after a three-hour session last night during which the Council met with Deans Andrew Cogswell and Maurine Clow.

Grimes said there are two reasons for his resignation:

"Dean Cogswell refuses to accept the stipulations that the Council drew up on Feb. 25," under which it said it would continue to handle liquor cases and which called for closer cooperation from the deans on matters of procedure.

"The dean in fact makes requisite that the Council initiate its own cases. This was not the understanding that I had when I became chairman," Grimes said.

Others Not Named

He did not name the other Council members who plan to resign. He said, however, that their reasons are apparently the same as his.

"The members who are staying are staying because they want to sit as an advisory body to those reviewing liquor regulations and to any further Council," Grimes said.

Grimes said that Cogswell made it clear that he would not comply with the procedural stipulations the Council adopted Feb. 25 after what the Council termed "misunderstandings" with a "section" of the deans offices.

Grimes also said, "It's my contention that the present regulations need revision and that if student enforcement of any regulation is to continue, it must be within a smaller area of the individual living groups."

Rules 'Noxious'

"The present rules are so noxious that it's doubtful that any student would care to enforce them upon his peers," Grimes said.

Another member of the Council who asked not to be named said that the reason members of the Council plan to resign is specifically Dean Cogswell's reported request that the Council "initiate" its own cases.

In other words, the Council would be required to report violators itself, where presently it only acts on cases presented by the deans.

Speaking of the Council generally, Grimes said, "A Council of this nature will not solve any alleged liquor problem, and it is doubtful that any type of council under the present all-inclusive rules may effect a solution.

"I would be willing to work with any body reviewing the present rules," Grimes said.

Viewed as 'Ultimatum'

The requested rules of procedure which the Council submitted to the deans Feb. 25 were viewed by Dean Cogswell as an "ultimatum," according to a letter he wrote to Grimes last week. At that time Cogswell said, "We will not come to you on our knees, or in response to any ultimatum which you submitted."

Grimes then scheduled the meeting with Deans Cogswell and Clow last night, which resulted in his decision to resign from the post he has held since last spring.

PIONEER IV IN ORBIT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—America's Pioneer IV space robot, which passed within 37,000 miles of the moon, soared today toward a permanent orbit around the sun.

Government scientists said that for a period "comparable to the life of our universe" the gold-plated 20-inch long instrument package would continue to revolve around the sun every 382 days.

Nan Carpenter's Book Is Published

Music in the Medieval and Renaissance Universities, a book written by Nan C. Carpenter, professor of English, has recently been published by the University of Oklahoma Press.

The book contains an introduction on the origins of western music in Greece and Rome and carries its developments up to modern times.

Dr. Carpenter has a doctorate in musicology from Yale University. She recently received a fellowship from the American Council of Learned Societies and is now doing research on music in Milton at the Huntington Library in Pasadena, Calif. She plans to continue her study in England this spring.

Dr. Carpenter was chairman of the English department in 1956-57 and was also chairman of the editorial board of the Montana State University Press in 1957 and 1958.

Ike Says Air Alert Not Needed

Compiled from UPI Wires

President Eisenhower said in a news conference that he thought the present 15 minute ground alert system of civil defense was satisfactory. The issue arose when a reporter asked Mr. Eisenhower if he thought the United States should keep its bombers on a continuous airborne alert. Gen. Nathan F. Twining expressed agreement with Mr. Eisenhower and said that as the enemy threat shifts from planes to missiles, which can span an ocean in minutes, an airborne alert would become necessary.

In Helena, Montana's House of Representatives voted 50 to 40 to kill the bill that would have raised the present six cents per gallon tax on gasoline to seven cents. A related bill concerning a weight-distance measure was vetoed earlier this week by Republican Gov. J. Hugo Aronson. The Democrats considered the two bills as the foundation of any increase in highway department revenues, by tying a shift in the tax burden on truckers with the revenue-producing gas tax bill.

An eye specialist at Presbyterian Medical Center in New York said yesterday that there is "every reason to believe" comedian Bob Hope will regain full vision in his left eye without surgery. A course of treatment to dissipate the blood clot which now interferes with Hope's vision was to be prescribed last night. The Medical Center said that telephone calls have been received from five fans of the actor offering to donate their own eyes if needed. All callers were told that no such sacrifice was necessary.

The Montana Senate kept intact Gov. J. Hugo Aronson's record of never having had a veto overridden by sustaining three of them yesterday. Senators voted 28 to 24 to sustain the veto of a bill to permit counties to levy a maximum one-mill tax for snow removal purposes in an emergency. It upheld 33-19 the governor's action turning down a Senate joint resolution voicing support of federal aid to education. The Senate also sustained 33-20 a veto of a bill that would have voided marriage illegally contracted between minors.

The marriage bill provoked the longest argument. Sen. Michal Ruane (D-Deerlodge) said that because of a Supreme Court opinion marriages in the "twilight zone" of girls 16 to 18 could not be annulled. He said the bill was needed. Sen. Edward Dussault (D-Missoula) disagreed and said the Judiciary Committee made a mistake in approving the bill as it made a third way of voiding a marriage. He said an action in equity could now be brought in addition to annulment and divorce.

A former Chicago singer has charged that the late Cornelius F. Kelley, head of the Anaconda copper empire, promised her $15,000 a year for life from his estate in return for devoted companionship. Mrs. Shirley Noelte told the New York State Supreme Court jury that the tycoon paid her that sum from the time they met in 1938 to his death in 1957, but the estate has refused to continue payments since that time. Mrs. Noelte's attorney said she was 26 and married when she met Kelley, 63, and his wife on a Montana vacation. She followed Kelley to New York and entered in an agreement to "make herself ready and available at all times" to the copper king in return for "support and maintenance." She abandoned her vocal career when Kelley insisted, so he might be to her "as a father to a daughter," the lawyer said. Mrs. Noelte is suing the estate and the Guaranty Trust Co., Kelley's executor, for renewal of the pension.

General Palmer Visits U Campus

Lieutenant General Charles D. Palmer, Commanding General of the Sixth United States Army, with headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., will visit the Montana State University campus this afternoon to confer with University authorities and to observe Army ROTC activities.

General Palmer will be making a routine annual visit to MSU in conjunction with his duties as Sixth Army Commander. The Sixth US Army includes the eight western states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Utah, California, Nevada and Arizona.

On his current trip the General will visit the campuses of the University of Utah, Utah State University, Montana State College and MSU.

J-School Grad Will Address Matrix Table

Edna Foster, a graduate of the School of Journalism, who has worked on publications and in public relations in the United States, Alaska and South America, will speak at the Matrix Honor Table, April 5. The formal dinner, sponsored annually by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, will be at 5:30 in the Bitroot Room of the Florence Hotel.

Mrs. Foster will talk on Alaska before and after statehood. She has written concerning life and work in Alaska, and has traveled by boat, plane, and dog sled finding information. She is presently employed by the Alaska Department of Health in public relations.

Mrs. Foster has initiated two publications, one in South America and one in Alaska. While in Chile, she started the "Andean," an English magazine that was later adopted as the official publication for the Chilean-American Culture Society. In Anchorage, she began the "Anchorage News."

Four outstanding women, one from each class, will be announced at the dinner. They will be chosen from a group of candidates selected by each women's living group. Attendance at the dinner is by invitation. Prominent towns women will be invited in addition to faculty wives and students.

Toastmistress will be Miss Dorothy Johnson.

The Students Lose

Clint Grimes' resignation from Judicial Council represents a loss to the student body and an indication that student self-government is tolerated as long as it does not conflict with administrative wishes.

Grimes, during his chairmanship of the Council, worked for an end with which most student are in agreement: revision of the existing University policies regarding drinking and adoption of a more liberal attitude toward those who violate existing rules.

The Council last month made several requests regarding procedures for handling of liquor violation cases; the requests did not seem unreasonable. They called for better-defined means of communication between the deans of students, violators and the Council, and for the right of violators to call in witnesses, as well as for the Council to call upon members of the administration, faculty or others who make accusations to give testimony. They further called for action by Judicial Council, meeting with AWS officers, on violations of liquor and hours regulations involving women students.

Last night, the deans apparently denied the Council these requests, and further stated that the Council should report violations itself, instead of simply acting on cases which are presented by the deans.

It had been Grimes' hope, and the Kaimin's as well, that the current controversy surrounding the Council would result in a re-valuation of the University's policy on drinking. The policy was formulated in a rather tactless manner and forced upon the student body; it has never been followed seriously. The result, rather, has been an attitude of "let's-get-away-with-as-much-as-we-can."

With Grimes' chairmanship of the Council now over, it is uncertain what will be the Council's future. Another chairman will possibly be named, and other members to fill the places of those who intend to resign. A wiser solution, it seems, would be for the student body to ignore the matter, refusing to fill the existing vacancies. The deans could then handle such matters without the assistance of policing by the Council which they apparently hope for. The eventual result might be that students would be less aware or concerned over the liquor regulations than they are at present.

'Existentialism' Perhaps Misused

To the Kaimin:

With reference to yesterday's report in the Kaimin about an article on what is taught in this University: There is one course in the catalog entitled "existentialism." The course has been given three times and on all those occasions I have had the pleasure of teaching it. I wish here neither to explain nor defend existentialism, but simply to suggest to anyone concerned to be careful in using words they may conceivably not understand.

HERE I STAND: A LIFE OF MARTIN LUTHER

Although theological problems and disputes are often weighted down in obscure presentations, this excellent biography of Martin Luther handles such things in a manner as to make them clear to any intelligent reader. It is an entertaining book, popularly written, but based on sound, scholarly research.

SIX DAYS OR FOREVER?

The "monkey-trial" of Dayton, Tenn., is probably the most often

RALLY ROUND THE FLAG, BOYS!

By Max Shulman
The story of the book is set in a small Connecticut town where the three groups—the Italians, Commuters, and Yankee Natives—struggle for dominance. Max Shulman, the master of undergraduate humor, the outrageous pun, and the verbal caricature, has produced a fireworks display of fun.

This book is a collection of speeches by one of the law profession's most outstanding practitioners. The personality of Clarence Darrow comes alive in this presentation of his own oratory. The book contains 13 of his major speeches, including his cross examination of William Jennings Bryant, and his own defense against the charge of jury bribery. The New York Times review of this dynamic work states that at least two of the documents are perfectly able to compete with the best movie of the week and stay with the reader "Longer, even than 'My Fair Lady.'"

Montana's First Skyline Championship Swimming Meet Begins Tonight

Montana State University's Championship Skyline Swimming meet will begin today in the University swimming pool.

The championship meet will continue three days, and is expected to be one of the closest sporting events of the year.

Important contenders are Denver University, the defending Skyline champion, Wyoming and Utah.

In the 1500-meter freestyle event to be held tonight at 8, the chances are good that Utah's Darwin Killpack will make the best showing. His time of 20:19.9 is only 0.00.3 seconds off the Skyline record set in 1957 by Buddy Belshe. Ralph Darr of Wyoming won the Eastern Division championships in February with a time of 20:55.9. This event will be the only final held tonight.

One of the spectator favored events—diving—will begin after the 1500 freestyle. They will be the one-meter springboard diving preliminaries. New Mexico's Jay Moxley is the eastern division champ. Bill Brubaker of MSU is the western division champ. Beginning Friday at 1 p.m. the preliminaries for eight events will Admission prices for the meets will be $1 for adults, 50 cents for MSU and high school students. A Skyline Conference ruling dictates admission prices to championship meets.

be run. The coaches of the seven competing schools will not decide who will enter each event until late Thursday night. The strategy used by the coaches is one of the more important parts of a swimming match. For instance, it would be foolish for one team to try to beat a man like Killpack in every event he enters, unless there is someone who has a very good chance of beating him. The men on a team must be used where they will do the most point-getting.

The events will be held in the following order; 200-yard butterfly (1958 winner Niethold, Wyoming, 2:32.9); 50-yard freestyle (Sam Jones, Denver, 23.6); 200-yard backstroke (Niethold in 1958, 2:19.6); 220-yard freestyle (1958 winner Killpack, Utah, 2:16.8); 100-yard breaststroke (Skyline record Yabe, Denver, 1:11.0); 200-yard individual medley (Skyline record Niethold, 2:25.5); and the 400-yard freestyle relay.

WRA Basketball Playoff In Women's Center Today

The WRA basketball championship game will be played today at 4:30 p.m. in the Women's Center. Contending teams are Alpha Phi and Missoula Independents.

Missoula women received a place in the championship game by defeating Kappa Alpha Theta 27 to 12 in the Gold league championship playoffs. Janice Matson scored 11 points for the Missoula team. Trudy Hertel and Carol Chakos, both from Billings, each scored points for the Thetas.

AP's gained the right to play in the championship game by remaining undefeated in the Blue league. Winner of the game today will play the faculty wives at a date yet to be scheduled.

Grizzlies Leave For Fort Collins

The Grizzlies departed this morning for the final two games of the 1958-59 basketball season. The 'Taps will meet Colorado State University at Fort Collins Friday night and University of Wyoming Saturday night.

A double victory will enable the team to post a 7-7 Skyline record.

Troop Pullback Favored

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan yesterday called on the West to open negotiations on an East-West pullback of troops from both sides of the Iron Curtain to help end the danger of war.

Macmillan's statement to parliament represented a sharp departure from previous western reaction to the Communist proposed idea for a nuclear-free zone and conventional troop pull-back in central Europe.

The western allies have consistently rejected the idea of such a withdrawal and this stand was reiterated by the United States, France and West Germany.

President Eisenhower told his news conference in Washington that he opposed such a troop pullback without iron-clad guarantees. Informed sources in Paris said that Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who met in the French capital, were firmly opposed to any British-sponsored negotiations on a withdrawal.

Macmillan, reporting on his 10-day visit to the Soviet Union, told the House of Commons that he and Soviet leaders "had a useful and constructive discussion" on the subject of limiting nuclear and conventional forces in a designated area of central Europe.

"I think it is one of the matters which must be further studied together with all the countries concerned," he said.

Macmillan told Commons: "The right thing we have to do now is to try to get negotiations going, not to argue too much about the exact phrasing or the precise formulas for it . . .

"If this should mean the beginning of negotiation rather than

Senator Claims Draft Program Has Inequities

WASHINGTON — (UPI)—Chairman Richard B. Russell of the Senate Armed Services Committee complained yesterday that some phases of the draft and military reserve programs are marked by inequities, injustices and a "degree of discrimination."

The Georgia Democrat said he had instructed the committee staff to explore ways of "equalizing" service obligations for possible insertion in the four-year draft extension bill sought by the administration.

Russell aired his complaints after Maj. Gen. William H. Harrison Jr., president of the National Guard Association, called for repeal of provisions of the reserve act which require persons who have served two years as draftees or volunteers to join active reserve units.

He also proposed that congress expand provisions of the present program which permits men under 18½ years old to volunteer for six months of active duty plus reserve or national guard service.

Harrison said congress directed last year that 55,000 young men be enrolled in the six-months program. But, he said, the Pentagon has held the program to 44,000 despite a waiting list in every state.

Russell broke in to say that the defense department prodded congress to begin the program in 1955 to start building up a reserve force made up mostly of men who had not seen extended active duty. Later, he said, the Pentagon "reversed its field" and began requiring that men who had served on active duty join reserve units.

"There are a great many inequities in the program," he said.

Russell also said that some men in the reserves are not required to drill because of no nearby units.
